

BIM Overview

- Building Information Modeling (BIM) is a collaborative process, not a software application. It enables architects, engineers, contractors, and owners to create, manage, and share digital building information throughout a project's lifecycle. BIM integrates design, cost estimation (budget), scheduling (timeline), construction planning, and 3D visualization into a single coordinated workflow using various software tools.

